

Columbia University Law School

William C. Warren Hall
New York, NY

Ten story, new building for Columbia University's Law School, named for the Law School's former Dean. The facility houses the Law Review as well as Morningside Heights Legal Services, a law clinic for disadvantaged neighborhood families.

Architect

Ennead Architects LLP, New York, NY

Client

Columbia University, New York, NY

Features

- new classrooms, seminar rooms, and library
- conference rooms
- administrative offices and support areas
- student lounge
- basement
- a 1,400 SF Columbia Greenhouse Nursery playground on the second floor roof
- situated between two historic buildings, both built in 1906

Services

Construction Management

